

WORSHIP IN SONG

“And let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to which also you were called in one body; and be thankful. Let the Word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom, teaching and admonishing one another in Psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord. And whatever you do in word or deed, do all in the Name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through Him.” Colossians 3:15-17

Proclaim the Word of God Through Music

The great Reformer, Dr. Martin Luther taught: We should praise God with both word and music, openly proclaiming the Word of God through music... He who believes earnestly cannot be quiet about it, but he must gladly and willingly sing and speak about it, so that others may come and hear it. And whoever does not want to sing and speak of it shows he does not believe it.

“They did not confess Him... for they loved the praise of men more than the praise of God.” John 12:42-43

Our Purpose

Why does the Church exist?

Does the Church exist to serve us?

Service

The Church most certainly does serve us through preaching, teaching and its many ministries of helps, discipleship and service. The Church also serves the broader communities as a witness to the Truth of God’s Word and as a practical help for the desperate and needy.

Worship

However, the Church primarily exists to worship, serve and glorify God. The Church exists for God first and only once it gets its priorities right, can it effectively serve others.

Called Out

The Biblical Greek word for Church is ekklesia. Which means called out. We are called to be in the world, but not of the world. We are called to be different, to not be conformed to the world, but transformed by the renewing of our minds through the Word of God.

The Household of God

God’s called out ones are also described as the household of God, the Church of the Living God, a pillar and buttress of truth (1 Timothy 3:14-15).

We are told that it is time for Judgment to begin at the household of God (1 Peter 4:17).

The Temple of God

Believers are described as the Temple of God: “Do you not know that you are God’s Temple and that God’s Spirit dwells in you?” 1 Corinthians 3:16-17

Nothing in the House of God, or in our activities of worship, can be described as insignificant, or merely as a matter of personal taste and preference.

Few things influence our Christian life more than how we sing praise to God.

Singing Praises to God

Deborah and Barak celebrated the military deliverance by Almighty God in song (Judges 5). Zacharias celebrated the birth of John the Baptist in song (Luke 1:68-79).

Mary celebrated the coming birth of Jesus in song (Luke 1:46-55).

Many Biblical passages command us to “sing to the Lord” (Exodus 15:21; 1 Chronicles 16:23; Psalm 95:1; 96:1-2; 98:1; 147:7; 149:1; Isaiah 42:10; Jeremiah 20:13; Ephesians 5:19; Colossians 3:16).

The Apostle Paul gave instructions about singing in church assemblies (1 Corinthians 14:15). John’s vision of the Redeemed in Heaven portrays them as engaged in singing: “And they sang a new song... worthy are You to take the scroll and to open its seals for You were slain, and by Your Blood you ransomed people for God from every tribe and language and people and nation.” Revelation 5:9

And he sang the song of Moses, the servant of God and the song of the Lamb, saying: “Great and amazing are Your deeds, O Lord God the Almighty! Just and true are Your ways, O King of the nations!” Revelation 15:3

Vital Not Trivial

Biblically, music is not merely a matter of entertainment, or amusement. Music and song are very serious, both culturally and religiously.

Our Privilege and Duty

Singing is Divinely instituted, Divinely commanded and Divinely regulated as our natural response to God’s great works of Creation, protection, provision and guidance. To sing in worship is our remarkable privilege and solemn duty. The attitude today that praise and worship is a matter of taste and preference does not come from a study of the Scriptures, but from a culture which has come to be characterised by amusement and entertainment. Much of the music we listen to falls into the category of this entertainment. We are surrounded by music in shops, in many workplaces, in restaurants, even in taxis and elevators. Many people shuffle along with pods in their ears, ensuring that they have a steady stream of background noise from the time they wake up to the time they go to sleep. Never before in history has music played such an overwhelming part in every day life. But much of what we hear on a daily basis is commercially driven, trivial and hyper casual. The question is: Can such music mediums be adequate, or appropriate, for the task of worship?

Artistic Relativism

Aesthetic relativism states that there are no standards by which artistic creativity can be measured. It is all merely a matter of taste. But surely such relativism is as unbiblical as ethical relativism. It is said that the truth of art is higher than the truth of facts.

The Ultimate Standard

God is our artistic standard, just as He is our ethical standard. As creatures made in the image of God, when we are creative, we need to make things that are beautiful, practical, pleasant and excellent, just as our Creator God has made all things well. God is a God of beauty and order. Surely our literature, art, architecture and music needs to reflect that?

Thinking God’s Thoughts After Him

Musical aesthetics is no insignificant matter of personal taste. Just as all true science is thinking God’s thoughts after Him, so too is any artistic creativity. The highest we can rise is to think

God's thoughts after Him. Something does not need to be new to be better. Much of what God makes is new, such as every sunrise, sunset, or a new born child or kitten. But other things that God has made are very old such as Table Mountain.

Removing the Superfluous

When Michelangelo was complimented for his work of art in the statue of David, he explained that he simply had to take away the superfluous marble to reveal the figure which was already in there!

Superficial

Since contemporary pop music has been developed for commercial reasons, and is almost exclusively associated with fairly superficial amusement, the question arises as to whether such a superficial music form can ever be appropriate for the worship of Almighty God?

Serious Considerations

Christianity requires repentance, the fear of God, sacrifice, obedience and unselfishness. There is a time and a place for celebration and joy, but much of Christianity requires serious reflection. No one has ever written a Requiem for a funeral to be accompanied by electric guitars and tambourines. Death is a serious matter and sounds more appropriate to trivia and amusement would be inappropriate.

Inconsistent Standards

Many worship leaders who wear jeans and T-shirts to church and bounce up and down on the stage with a guitar have a very different attitude when it comes to their own weddings. Why do people who think casual dress and light music mediums are appropriate for the worship of God choose classical music and traditional hymns for their own weddings? Why is it that they put so much effort into formal clothing for their own wedding? Expensive gowns, renting of tuxedos and serious music are chosen because weddings are a significant and serious occasion. So they choose to accompany it with significant and serious music and clothing.

Surely, worship should also be significant and serious?

A Matter of Priorities

The marriage between Christ and His bride, the Church, must surely be more significant than any merely human wedding? Should our meetings on the first day of the week, remembering and celebrating the Resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ, not employ forms that are more significant and serious than bubblegum type pop?

Shallow and Trivial

Much in contemporary pop music is shallow, trivial and inconsequential. Why should the Church want to use a form associated with trivial and light entertainment?

Actions Speak Louder Than Words

Meta-messages are the non-verbal messages that go along with the actual words. Our body language, clothing, tone of voice and facial expressions, can often communicate something quite different from our actual words.

The Spirit is Willing But the Flesh is Weak

We may say that our worship is God-centered, but do things that undermine this. We might preach that the way is narrow that leads to life, but then do things that suggest otherwise. We might say that we want to resist being conformed to the world, but then act as though the world's standards were our own.

Another Gospel

Christianity is a demanding and serious Faith. When it is delivered as light, easy and amusing, then it is actually an entirely different kind of religion altogether.

Medium Overwhelms Message

What is at stake is the kind of message being presented in our music. If Christianity is not light, trivial, easy and inconsequential then is it appropriate that we use that kind of mundane medium?

Who is More Important?

While Pastor Rick Warren of Saddleback Church never wears dress-shirts or ties, or suits at his Sunday services, he did famously wear a tie and suit for the inauguration of president Obama. Does he intend to send the meta-message that Obama is more important than God?

Double Standards

We are being inconsistent when we claim that we have rejected all ritual, yet continually show up at church in jeans and T-shirts, but at weddings and funerals, wear formal and expensive gowns and tuxedos. Either we continue to dress up for weddings and funerals, anniversaries, inaugurations and birthdays and other rituals which convey importance to distinguish the special from the mundane, and do the same for our meeting with the Triune God on the first day of the week. Or we should remove ritual and formality from all parts of life.

Contrasts in Culture

Much of contemporary pop culture is sub-Christian and impoverishing:

Pop culture focuses on the new, whereas traditional and high-culture focuses on the timeless.

Pop culture discourages reflection. Traditional culture encourages reflection.

Pop culture is pursued casually to entertain. Traditional and high-culture is pursued with deliberation with the intention to worship.

Pop culture gives us what we want and tells us what we already know. Traditional culture offers us what we could not have imagined.

Pop culture relies on instant accessibility and encourages impatience. Traditional and high-culture requires training and encourages patience to acquire the skills needed.

Pop culture emphasizes the trivia. High-culture emphasizes knowledge and wisdom.

Pop culture celebrates fame. Traditional culture celebrates excellence.

Pop culture is subjective and appeals to sentimentality. Traditional culture is objective.

In pop culture content and form are governed by the requirements of the market, what is popular. However, traditional culture sees content and form governed by the requirements of the created order, the way God has made the world.

Formulas are the substance in pop culture. Formulas are only the tools in traditional culture.

Pop culture relies on spectacle. Traditional culture relies on formal dynamics and the power of symbols, including in language.

Pop culture is individualistic, whereas high-culture is communal. This is particularly seen in the reciting of our common Faith in the Apostle's Creed and praying the Lord's Prayer: Our Father...

Pop culture leaves us where it found us. Traditional culture transforms us.

Pop culture is incapable of deep or sustained attention, it is shallow. Traditional culture is capable of repeated, careful attention because it is transcendent.

Pop culture reflects the desires of self. Traditional culture encourages understanding of others, particularly of the Will of God.

Pop culture tends towards relativism. Traditional culture tends towards submission to standards.

Popular culture is used. Traditional and high-culture is received.
